REPORTS TO High School Director

SEQUOYAH HIGH SCHOOL

Sequoyah School, an independent school founded in Pasadena, CA in 1958, launched an innovative high school program in September, 2016. As an extension of our K-8 program, students are guided through the deep intellectual exploration of content following a student-centered, problem-based pedagogy that offers relevant contexts for learning and opportunities for application. Furthermore, the high school's Social Innovation Program builds upon the changemaking work practiced in the K-8 program. Sequoyah faculty help student teams that explore issues in the community via a design thinking process that encourages teachers and students to spend time off campus interacting with community members and organizations. Finally, with field studies as a hallmark of a Sequoyah education, students and teachers travel around California, the Southwest and Pacific Northwest to explore the natural world and engage with a variety of communities and cultures. The high school program also offers international expeditions.
